

The Butterfly Room wins national Best In-House Training Award

The Butterfly Room, part of the Harrogate-based charity, Avalon, has won the prestigious 2008 Skills for Care Accolade for 'Best In-House Training Department'.

Skills for Care aims to modernise national workforce standards for the adult social care sector. To achieve an Accolade proves an organisation's success in achieving the highest standards of workforce development within social care from across the U.K.

The Butterfly Room provides specialist social care training programmes to Avalon employees, as well as public, private, and third sector organisations.

"The team and I are thrilled to receive this award, as it is testament to the passion, drive and commitment we have to the learning and development of all staff, family living providers, support workers and volunteers," commented Julie Colley, Inclusive Learning and Development Director

The accolade was received at an awards ceremony held at The Landmark Hotel in London, on Friday 7th November.
